VOLUME XLVIII. WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1888—TEN PAGES. PRICE TWO CENTS

AN INDISCREET QUEEN.

HE IS CURED BY A MIRACLE

A RACEWAY AT THE TERMINUS.

THE STRIKE ON THE SANTA FE.

A STABLE BOY'S MADNESS.

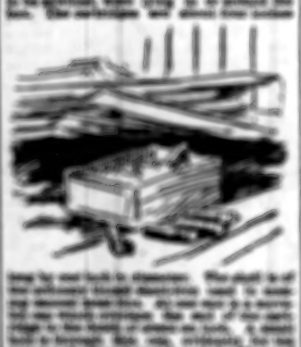
THE MURDEROUS KIDS.

Inspector Bonfield and Chief Hubbard had a conference and a few minutes in an adjoining room. Warrants were drawn up and early yesterday morning Bonfield's brown wagon was backed up to the door of the Larrabee Street Station, where he was joined by Hubbard and Lieutenant Shea from the police court building. Then the wagon started on the rounds. Two officers were with Bonfield, and they were all armed. They started at the corner of Larrabee and Division streets, and the first house visited was that of Mrs. Lena Ehlert, who lives on the second floor of the building. Bonfield and Hubbard went up the stairs, while Inspector Bonfield stood in the hallway below. Mrs. Ehlert, who is a widow, and has been left unprovided for by her husband, who died a few months ago, was in bed when the officers entered her room, and in spite of the confusion which the sudden appearance of the officers created she was soon completely and fully dressed. Then the officers went to the next house, which Inspector Bonfield knew to be occupied by Louis Ehlert, a son of Mrs. Ehlert, and a brother of Lena Ehlert, who was arrested some time ago charged with complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin. Louis Ehlert and his wife were both at home, and they were soon joined by Inspector Bonfield and Lieutenant Shea, while Inspector Bonfield stood in the hallway below. Mrs. Ehlert, who is a resident of Chicago Lawn, on Ogden avenue, a short distance beyond Western avenue, was formerly employed by Dr. Cronin as a nurse, and was in Cronin's employ at the time of the murder. She was also a witness before the Coroner's jury. Louis Ehlert and his wife were both arrested and taken to the Central Station, where Inspector Bonfield and Lieutenant Shea, with Chief Hubbard, were awaiting them. Mrs. Ehlert, who is a woman of about 30 years of age, is a sister of Dennis Kunze, who was arrested on suspicion of having had something to do with the murder of Dr. Cronin, and who was released from custody after a few days' detention. Kunze is a carpenter by trade, and has always borne a fairly good reputation. He has no connection in any way with the Clan-na-Gael, and has never been personally known to any of the Chicago members of that organization.

The knife and scabbard found in the vault of Ehlert's saloon.

The house at 1888 Larrabee street, where Dr. Cronin was murdered.

The basement of the house at 1888 Larrabee street, where Dr. Cronin was murdered.



The vault in which the knife and scabbard were found.

STARTLING DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED.

The Focus of the Interrogatories to Be Kept a Secret as Yet.

Inspector Bonfield, while willing to give the public all the information he could concerning the conspiracy, was careful to keep secret the source of his information and the fact that an informer is actually in custody and under surveillance. He told the reporter of the private in the characteristic way, but the details of the conversation he would not divulge, as he hopes to prepare for certain reports. "Some things will be done very soon," said he, "a number of them in the next few days, and the public will be astonished at the result. I am not going to tell you, for I don't want to, but I will say that the arrests of Kunze, Coughlin, Woods, and Burke, and the searching of Ehlert's saloon, were only a few of the things that will be done. Some of the arrests will be made in Chicago, and some in other cities. Of course I cannot tell you where, but I will say that the arrests will be made in a few days. Of course I cannot tell you who will be arrested

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1896.

[illegible]

The local money market was active and steady, with exchange tension. Local exchange was dull on the stock board, but in fair investor demand. Wall street was quiet and unsettled within a narrow range of prices. The Chicago profits market were irregular. Cotton was again strong on bulls, but brought lower buying orders, and a local speculator sold heavily both of long and short. Sugar was quiet and steady. Coffee was dull. Wheat was lower, but fluctuations were narrow. Corn was lower, with trade dull. Oats were lower, with trade dull. Barley firm, and flax unchanged.

[illegible]

As the Bible bill stands originally it would have given much to shield the sugar monopoly based on fraudulent undervaluation of duties and evasion of law, but as it stands now the trust will be permitted not only to continue its monstrous exactions but to increase them. Can there be any doubt why the bill was changed? Will not the Democratic Committee have good reason to expect a heavy check from the Havemeyer trust for enhancing their tremendous profits at the expense of the people? How will the Bible believers on the money question explain this enormity piece of business?

[illegible]

The law under which the conspiracies organized by Inspector Brackett and probably by prominent agents in that whole rogue gallery of the last session of the Legislature, were evolved as "Act to regulate the appointment, with and use of explosives, and to punish the improper use of the same," which provides as follows:

[illegible]

Commissioner Sim Coatsworth of the Health Board directly at a corrupt and outrageous job in the Bible bill when he asked on Bible and the Democratic side to sustain only the provisions of the original measure looking to a reasonable reduction of duties on refined sugar in the interest of consumers but have characterized and made to give way for a scale of duties that actually perpetuates the colossal sugar and blackmail graft which the Big Sugar Trust wants from the American people.

[illegible]

The Republicans of the Second Senatorial District made their legislative nominations yesterday. The nominees are: Senator Charles H. Crawford, Nine Park; Assemblymen, S. S. Rogers, Lenox; Carl T. G. Hoffmann, Fourth Ward. As the district is normally Republican, there ought to be no doubt about the election of the nominees. Senator Crawford has represented the district for the last four years, and his popularity seems to be attested by the fact that he had not slight opposition at the primaries. His nomination was made by acclamation, as the convention. The other nominees are also popular in their respective districts. In 1894 through mismanagement the Republicans lost their only member of the Legislature in this district. The Lenox candidate stepped into the vacant Republican seat on account of the blunders on the part of supporters of one of the Republican candidates. One of the candidates dropped out many of the supporters in giving up the nomination and got beaten for his trickiness.

[illegible]

The Washington Critic is responsible for the following in reference to the Democratic campaign fund:

> Representative Bunn of Pennsylvania has sent out letters asking for a loan of $1,000 to be used in the campaign of 1896. Mr. Bunn is a member of the Democratic National Committee from Pennsylvania, and the letter was sent out from the committee rooms in the New Ebbitt House. Mr. Bunn is also a member of the Democratic Congressional Committee, and the letter was sent out on the committee stationery.
>
> In addition to those here of the amount requested from the New York bankers, whose committee have been seen by the Democratic members of the surplus revenue should with them as well here as elsewhere ago. It was not for the use of this deposit that Cleveland resigned. Coal would be stolen, wood by mail on to a million of dollars. Every disturbance will be fundamentally unlike from the members of the Democratic party from the first three days to the Bible bill. The contributors of Texas represented the Standard Oil "combine." Mr. Havemeyer, they were "broke" with the money already in.
